At a confidential work conference of the Bau-Union Sued in Dresden, which took place on 15 July 1955, construction chiefs were informed that in 1956 a new industrial plant, similar to the old Junkers-Werke in Dresden, was to be built and that work on clearing the ground for the plant and construction of barracks for the construction workers was to begin immediately. The plant, which is to belong to the Main Administration for Industrial Requirements, is to be located south of State Road 6, which runs from Dresden through Buehlau and Weissig to Fossendorfer Teich. 1, 2
